GEN LEMEN,—The term for which you elected me to push dyour interests in the City Council as one of your Altermen will expire on the 30th November next, I therefore thus early take the opportunity of announcing myself as a Candidate for re-election.

Since you first did me the homour, in the year 1859, to place me in the position of Alderman, I feel that I have diligently attended to the interests of Gipps Ward, and, at the same time, have never lost sight of what I believe to be the duty of every man accepting such a position—namely, to take care that in watching over the expenditure of the Corporation funds no injustice should be allowed to be done to the other Wards for the benefit of that portion of the Municipality represented by myself. I feel satisfied that it is unnecessary to remind you that my long residence of upwards of twenty-five years amongst goot, and my thorough identification with every movement for the advancement of the city of Sydney, as well as the many works of improvement which I have been instrumental in having carried to a successful completion in the Ward during my long tenure of office, must be regarded as at least forming some fair claim for a renewal of that confidence which you have so long accorded to my, and which I feel honcetly proud in saying I have never abused.

improvements, the cost of which will be recouped in one or two years, and the value of which free selection would not be likely seriously to affect within some years of their being made. We have met with several men who declare that they are abandoning cattle-breeding because they will not fence, and who will not fence because of the uncertainty of their tenure; but surely if they looked carefully into the subject, and did not allow themselves to be led away by imaginary difficulties, they would adopt a different course. If they are in a position of uncertainty, they are, at all events, as Crown The retention of Ministers in office has been strengthened by the repugnance of some who seem to aspire to Ministerial positions. Their future conduct in Opposition will either increase or diminish this sentiment. No party now can pretend to a pure patriotism which may entitle them to take high ground of criticism, Having exhausted a specious patriotism, those who take a post in opposition, should endeavour to acquire the reputation of party fairness. Mr. ROBERTSON, at all events, in the bold and reso-ROBERTSON, at all events, in the bold and reso lute motion which he offered to the House, has not at all impaired his character for pluck, uncertainty, they are, at all events, as Crown although, perhaps, his renown for astuteness has been somewhat obscured. No man will tenants, occupying the land on such rents as may be considered a full recompense for the uncertainty. A man might expect in obtaining his land at the fraction of a penny an acre, to lay his account for some unpleasant conultimately lose by doing openly, and in a direct manner what he purposes to accomplish; and we hope that all who profess to follow his leadership and support acre, to lay his account for some unpleasant con-tingencies. Any person who hired a large house from another, in a very lonely situation, and who obtained it at a very low rent indeed, in consideration of his willingness to vacate a room now or then to a fresh incomer, would scarcely abstain from furnishing; but, regarding the slight chances of molestation, would furnish, and in case a furnished apartment was selected, would calculate the abstraction to be in the nature of his aspirations, will take a course equally open, and that we shall not be harassed by small motions for mere mischief, and not be disgraced by countings out or monkey tricks of debate; by cries of disorder and by insinuations which it is impossible for gentlemen to offer or to endure.
The angry feeling which may have been kindled in the debate will not extend to the community case a turnished apartment was selected, would calculate the abstraction to be in the nature of increased rent charge. It might be more desirable for him, could be obtain the house without such conditions; but, in doing so, a higher rent would be demanded for the comat large. Perhaps never was a decision less approved upon its own merits, or more willingly accepted in view of the surrounding circumstances. The arrival of the DUKE OF EDIXBURGH makes it specially desirable to many that the Ministry should remain in office, and pleter security. No one has absolute security in the possession of any land. The exigencies of the Stramay compel him to relinquish the whole or part of his estate at any time, with compensation more or less according to the conditions under which he became possessed of it. that those who look forward to festivity as the business of the next few weeks, should be spared the turmoil of an election. This advantage will be, however, lost if motions of a similar nature be, however, lost if motions of a similar nature are to be repeated at every sitting. It ought to be borne in mind that a majority of ten, and the absence of many, who while disapproving of the doctrine laid down, were not unwilling to The continued discussion of the question has had, at all events, one good effect. It has so far enlightened the minds of most persons accept its results, places the propriety of change at a considerable distance. It is childish play that little is new heard of the obje formerly urged against fencing. At one time it was said that sheep which were not shepherded became wild, that the per centage of lambs was diminished when the ewes were paddock fed, that greater loss was incurred o go over the same tactics to meet a re already foreseen. The vote on the course taken by the Ministy must be understood as including by the Ministy must be understood as including a condonation of their past mistakes and failings, so far as they have passed under the review of the Assembly. New facts will be required, or a change in the circumstances of the country, to make it proper for an Opposition to attempt the expulsion of the present Ministers from power. While we have no doubt that their continuous office has been a violation. were paddock fed, that greater loss was incurred from the attacks of dogs, and that the fences were apt to be destroyed by fire. Experience has proved these to be delusive objections. The native dogs would, of course, defeat the system were it not that a quietus can be administered to them. In fact, now that a settler can, under the Native Dog Destruction Act of 1852 prices the heartests. ters from power. While we have no doubt that their continuance in office has been a violation of Parliamentary government, we are equally certain that motions having no probability of Act of 1852, poison the boundaries of his run, and assess the owners of the several conterminous runs, in one-half the cost of poisoning, proporsuccess, and repeating propositions already rejected, are barely consistent with statesmanship It is satisfactory to perceive that the attempt at defending the course pursued upon British precedents, has been practically abandoned by all but those who produced them, and that the true motives of the vote given, are, upon the whole, fairly admitted. It is far less likely to be pernicious, under these circumstances, than disguised under the cover of any pretence, and declared to be the true method of responsible government. At any time, when it shall suit the convenience of the House, and the tone of the convenience of the riouse, and the tone of politics is restored, it may be possible to return to the correct Parliamentary principle, and perhaps, by a solemn declaration, revoke a decision, which it has introduced, as a new syskeeping, and rations, with extra expense at lambing, will exceed that of the original cost of a brush fence, proof against both sheep and cattle—that nearly double the number of sheep can be carried on the We do not suppose that the Ministry will attempt any reconstruction of their measures during the present session. If, therefore, they have not carried them to a successful issue they have at least escaped the burden of con-ducting them. There ought to be a very careful revision of the Estimates, and the passing, if possible, of a sound Muni-cipal Act, of which the other colonies paddocks the first year; for though the cost of the fence may be unusually large, on account of the scarcity of timber, the saving in the menual labour, and in the condition and products of the arising will be used. have already offered both the example and the plan. This would indeed be, if broad and resolute, a more valuable contribution to our laws than almost any other hitherto adopted. It is only by retrenchment, and the diminution of the pressure upon the Government, that we he estimates the expenses in the case of a block of land ten miles one way by twelve another. He supposes this block to be fenced with forty-four miles of boundary "chock and log" fence, at the price of £50 per mile; and that half its cost is met by neighruption—to call it by its true name—by which the votes of country members were secured, and the proper attention paid to local interests, which can never be conducted with effect or conomy by a power so distant as the central

The action of the municipal system, as far as it has gone, has proved its worth. There have been localities that have resisted the trial in been localities that have together to shirk the expense; but we believe there is no feeling more general than that the introduction of municipal law has been a great introduction of municipal law has been a great benefit to the community, and that an extension in the same direction, embracing larger interests, would have an equally desirable effect. At present we are far behind the sister colonies. Even Tasmania, in all its depression, has shewn a far more intelligent appreciation of local affairs. The smallness of the general revenue has, indeed made it impossible to meet the contents. ndeed, made it impossible to meet the wants of ducing a fiscal system such as modern political too if we would enjoy anything like the same advantages which are possessed elsewhere, or be competent to fulfil the duties of citizen-

It may be possible, if party spirit be not in the ascendant, for the remaining days of the session to be usefully spent, and for the country for that waste of time which to see an atonement for that waste of time which retards the progress of useful legislation, and holds in suspense interests which above all things require that the public policy should be distinct and clear. The representatives of the people, if they are truly such, will consider themselves bound to employ the public time in view of the public good. All these interminable speeches; these repetitions of the same idea, and adjournments from day to day upon ques-tions which might be better settled after a short debate, are unsuitable to the present stage of our legislative history, and perfectly absurd in those who avow that it is not upon Parliamentary precedents they propose to govern the for the moment surround them, and to accom-plish the ends which are contemplated by the party or the constituency for which they act.

So much has been said about the profitable results of paddock feeding sheep, that con-viction upon this subject might be supposed to be complete. Recent controversy, however shews that the example of Victoria has gone for nothing in some parts, as well as spirited examples nearer home. The letters that have examples nearer nome. The letters that have appeared in our columns concerning the advantages of paddocks show, strange to say that men who acknowledge these advantages, who acknowledge that the sheep so cared for are bigger and better woolled than sheep shep-

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE PROK SUDEN DRAIN AT THE ZIGAO.—A few days past a most remarkable instance of the above occurred. It seems that a sub-contractor under Mr. Higgins had a number of men employed in Disating portions of the fearful cliffs that overhang the proposed line of rallway down the Bathurst side of the Blae Mountains at Lithgow Valley. A large shet had been fired, large masses of rock being threely thrown into the training portions come of the blooks in the timedicale violaity, would not allow his men to return to the same place, but commenced similar operations some twenty or thirty yards away. They had been working here some three or four hours, when the sub-contrastor by mere chance happened to look up the mountain, and naw that an immense mass of rock, weighing about forty tons, had detacled itself from its place, and was rolling directly on to where a man named Mighty was standing. He calied out to him, "Come away; come away!" Mighty immediately did so; but had only advanced two steps when ha fell; and the mass of rock, apparently, orushed down on top of him. Not so, however, for his fall was the means of some which had been blown down by former shotz. The block lodged precisely where he had been standing, and, smeshing itself in the fall, glanced off in severabout.

The Prince or Wales Opera House.—The clover troupe of peantonimists and ballet danoers, known as the Lehman Family, have appeared every ovening during the past week to moderate houses. On Monday worning they appeared in Robert and Bertrand, on Tuesday and Welmeds in the Contrabandist and Monsieur Dechaisumeau; and last night, for the benefit of Monsieur A Lehman, in the Contrabandist and the Magic Trumpet. Benides the attraction which terpetchorian displays always have for a section of the theatre gody. Mossre Lehman and Haslam have each evening performed an atheut feat entitled "The Great Nisgara Leap," one of the most daring things of the kind witnessed in the colonies, and almost too dangerous to be attractive. Under more favourable circumstances the company would probably have must with greater success, but they have had to contend with other attractions, and that at a time when many cannot afford to spend ranony on public amusements. The dramatic company, under the management of Mr. J. L. Hall, an actor of considerable merit and skill an a stage manager, have opened the entertainments each night with a councy, in which kir. and Mrs. Hall, and the other members of the corpu dramatique have exerted themselves to render their department worthy of favourable notice. Mundrots Assault by a Shepheren.—The Seone correspondent of the Mailland Mercury reports that a short time since a license for a public-house was taken out by a person named Mitchell, living on the Hunter, near Moonan; this person being a young man, and nephew to another named Cook, an old resident, who is the owner and occupier of the public-house. In the neighbourhood are several sheep stations belonging to the Messrs. While, of Bellitrees, and to the shepherde occupying these stations this public-house has already been a sad temptation and sansa. On Tuesday last two of these shepherds left their etation, one leaving his dock in the yard, and the other turning it into the bush—went to this public-house and obtained spirits. A man named Crowley, working for a farmer close at hand, seeing one of these shepherds in a state of intoxication, took charge of him, and brought him back to his but; there the other shepherd was found, and drinking commenced. After night had set in, Urswley took one shepherd away, having induced him to go quietly to sleep at his master's house; here, after they arrived, more spirits were introduced, and then they went to bed. Smith, the shepherd, was overheard for a long time shusing his quarters, when the other (Crowley) told him, from his own room, that if he did not keep quiet he must leave the place, and, suiting the action to the word, got up and opened a gate for this purpose, calling on Smith, to come out. The two men met each other in the dark, when, without the elightest warning, Smith fired at Crowley with a revolver, wounding him in the abdomen: Crowley then closed with his assislant, and, in endeavouring to wreat the platel from him, had his hand wounded by another discharges. He these sized the pistol, knocked Smith down, and ran into the house, where he roused his mistros, and tothe house, in the continuon, and there being no other man near. Smith got away. THE DUKE OF EDINBURGH IN ADELAIDE.

BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY. THE Prince, accompanied by his Equerries and the Private Secretary, rode out through Painham yesterday evening, returning to Government House to dinner—the President of the Council, the Speaker of the Assembly, and Sir J. Fisher being asked to meet him. The illuminations were a partial failure, owing to the deficiency in the supply of gas; the Town Hall and the principal Government buildings were not lit up; it is probable they will be illuminated to-night.

The private illuminations were general; those in Rundle and King William streets were very good. The crowd was immense but very orderly, and everything passed off without accident. The programme has been slightly altered; on Saturday, there will be a review, athletic sports, and amateur performance by the officers of the 50th in aid of the Orphan Home; on Monday, a cricket match between civilians and the crew of the Galatea, and the laying of the foundation-stone of Alfred College; on Tuesday, the subscription ball.

The Prince's levee this morning was attended by an immense number of persons. Addresses were presented by both Houses of Parliament, the Freemasonry, Old Colonists, and Benefit Societies ; the replies to the addresses are to be forwarded to the respective bodies. The deputations were all cordially received by his Royal Highness, and the ceremony lasted an hour and a half. At 1 o'clock the Prince, attired in his uniform as Captain, attended by the Governor and a brilliant staff, and escorted by a detachment of mounted Volunteers and police, proceeded to lay the foundation stone of the Victoria Tower at the new Post Office; he was enthusiastically received by the crowds collected along the streets; a platform was erected on the spot, which was filled by some 6000 persons. The Commissioner of Public Works and the architects read addresses which were appropriately replied to by his Royal Highness, who eft on the conclusion of the ceremony amidst tremendous cheering—the whole was a complete success. The contractors of the New Post Office, Messrs. Brown and Thomson, presented the Prince with a magnificent gold trowel, with jewelled handle, with which to lay the founda-

GROVES'S WEATHER TABLES.—We have received a copy of the above, compiled by Mr. G. W. Groves, of Mabourne. The present tables extend from June to Decamber. Without expressing any opinion as to the value or otherwise of the prediction, we will let Mr. Groves speak for himself. In a circular issued by this gentleman he says—"A science that enables us to obtain a foreknowledge of the beasons we are likely to have, cannot but prove of the highest practical utility, either in years of drought or years of Gloods. The shipping interests would be specially benefited by a foreamwing of the weather. But hefore men can benefit by such knowledge, they must first be brought to have faith in the predictions, and in order to establish this faith, it will be necessary for me to prove, by actual experience, the possibility of forstelling the weather from well-known established laws, that are as unifor mi their operations as the laws of gravitation. The laws that govern the armospheric changes, as indeed all the laws by which the great Creator carries on the operations of nature, are beautiful in their simplicity."

There is, however, this excuse for the Opposition, should they persevere in resisting the Ministry. The principle has been set up that the confidence of the House in the persons of those who common the Government is to be the confidence of the House in the persons of those who compose the Government is to be determined not by their legislative measures, but by personal predilection. It may therefore be fairly inferred by those who desire a change, be fairly inferred by those who desire a change, that a week's greater experience will throw one or two disappointed adherents to the other side of their ranks. Indeed this is one grand consequence of the mistake which, in our opinion, has been made. We have struck away the sure constitutional test by which Ministerial authority and influence are to be determined.

The Cataract Coal Mine Railway Bill was read a second time, and passed through committee. Mr. Winders Bill, explaining that the measure was intended solely to introduce here the law in relation to common carriers that had existed in England since 1830. There was nothing new in the principle of the bill, and the object was simply to regulate the liability of common carriers with regard to the public, and to put a stop to the many cases of difficulty and injustice that had arisen in the Law Courts of the colony, under the present state of the law. Whilst this was done for the common carrier, the public were protected also, by being guarded against having enforced upon them by carriers, conditions that were manifestly unjust.

an effective support to the Ministry. Even some who veted in the minority—and we should have been found in their number—may well take this course. Those who have more confidence in the persons who are likely to constitute a Government in the event of the retirement of the present Ministers of course may continue to It seems absurd for the Assembly to keep public affairs in a continual agitation, not in reference to their nature so much as the

would carry, would require 13 shepherds at £35 per annum each; 7 hutkeepers, each at £25; 20 rations each at £20 per annum, and extra help amounting to £30. These items would create a sum total of £930. The shepherding in the other case—one boundary rider having charge of two paddocks—amounts, with wear and tear of horseflesh and harness, to £590 per annum. Further, interest is charged at the rat of 10 per cent., which, upon £2000, amounts to £200. This affords a balance of £140 in favour of fencing. It would not do, however, to regard this balance as disposable. Nothing, for instance, has been allowed for repairs, which would certainly cost 5 per cent. per annum, reducing the £140 to £40,—and then since the fence would require to be renewed in seven or ten years, 5 or 7½ per cent. should be annually written off for a renewal fund. Supposing the written off for a renewal fund. Supposing the interest on the £2000 was reduced to 7½ per cent., and the renewal fund was the product of a charge upon the same sum of 7½ per cent., £60 would be left against the fencing. But this would speedily be lost sight of—if we adopted the figures of the writer—in the results of doubling the capabilities of the run, augmenting the surplus disposable stock, and increasing the growth of wool from £50,000 to £132,000 per annum. If such be the return upon the expenditure of £2000, it is somewhat surprising that the pastoral tenant should allow the that the pastoral tenant should allow the ghost of the free selector to frighten him out

There is some more show of reason in the fence; but it is clear that when a man has taken a station he cannot afford to fence—he has done a foolish act. In fact, he has done that which will increase his anxieties and his shown—and experience so exhibits the facts—that the cost of a year's shepherding, hut-

all his cash in sheep and leaves none for fencing guilty of a foolish act. Take it which way

He then supposes this area to be sub-divided into twelve paddocks, which would re-quire fifty-four miles of subdivision brash fence at £17 per mile, costing £918, which, added to the above, would bring the total to £2018. Having expended this sum, what is the saving to the settler in the mere item of labour? From Mr. Gorpoy's estimate it would amount that

NEW SOUTH WALES PARLIAMENT,

LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 1.

THE SPEAKER TOOK the chair at 29 minutes past 3 o'clock.

PERSONAL ENFLANATION.

Mr. DIGNAM (by way of personal explanation) said by the paper of to-day he saw that the hon, member for Hartiey referred to him, in consequence of his having made remarks during his speech, as being in a state of beer. Now, he appeads to the liouse that it was not possible that he could have been in that way, because he was here at three o'clock, and the hon, member was addressing the House at seven o'clock. He was not a member of the refreshment room; he did not go there is liquor. He trusted those who were taking notes of this question would put it down in black and white, that he did not go there and never had, and, therefore, the supposition that in his excitable feelings he would be induced to express himself out of the way on that account, was a fallecy and out of the case. He was not to be supposed to have expressed himself as he intended to, as the hon, member for Hartley was not here; but he wished the House and the country to understand that he was not beery. Nothing of the kind. He was excitable to an extreme, no doubt of that; but when he read the paper this morning, and saw the hon, member cailed him drunk, or a drunkard, or something of that kind, he repeated his denial of it, and said this much, that he thought any member standing in his position in this House, who would forget himself and got into that state was not fit for his position. He was exampled to call upon this House, upon the Government, and upon the countriy, to appoint a commission or a select committee to investigate the matter, and say whether the hon, member was justified in his remark in any shape or way.

SHEEP DISEASE PREVENTION ACT.

Mr. GARRETT, for Mr. Morrice, asked the Secretary for leading the country, to appoint a commission or the execution of a passenger and goods station at Marulan. 2. Do the Go

Tuesday Lext.

Mr. WINDEYER said this bill, the second reading of which he now intended to move, had been on the paper a considerable time, and he had on several occasions postponed the second reading because the House generally had found itself, on Friday, almost too exhausted by the previous debates of the week for practical legislation. After the great thunderstorm of last night he hoped the atmosphere was now sufficiently clear to allow of the consideration of the bill before the House. It was different from the Carriers' Bills hitherto proposed by hon, members of the House. Those bills had been schemes for the Housing and regulation of the general business of common carriers. This bill had for its object simply the introduction into this colony of provisions that wend affect the liability of common carriers, which had been the law of England since 1830. There was nothing new in the principle contained in the bill, and its object was not to make any provision for the registration or licensing new in the principle contained in the bill, and its object was not to make any provision for the registration or licensing of carriers, but the regulation of their iabilities with regard to the public. His reason for introducing the bill was because he had observed from time to time that in our law courts considerable difficulty and much injustice had arisen for want of a good Act of this kind, and in order to enable hon. members to understand the provisions of the bill, and the form in which he proposed to introduce an assimilation to the law of England, he would endeavour shortly to explain the existing law as it affected the liability of carriers to the general public. The pestion of common carriers with regard to the public was that of insurers. They were liable for the damage to goods entreated to them, if that damage were not done by the act of God or of the Queen's enemies. No matter what seedent beful him, they must make good the injury done to properly entrusted to them, if the damage were not done by the act could not be compelled to make good the loss because they had given notice that they would not be liable for damagee caused by gross negligeace. A clause had been introduced into the Imperial Act, stating that a scarier should be responsible for loss caused by negligence or fraud, notwithstanding that he gave notice to the contrary; and in the seventh clause of this bill he had embedded the public the protection which it was proper they should have in these cases. The two main features of the bill were, therefore, protection to the carriers, so that they should not be liable to have enforced sgainst them conditions which were unjust. The first section of the bill protected that common carriers should not be liable to have enforced sgainst them conditions which were unjust. The first section of the bill protected that common carriers should not be liable for the loss of articles of a certain character (enumerated in the clause) which were peaked in a small compass, but which were often of considerable value, when the package exceeded the value of £10, unless it the time of delivery the value should be declared, and an increased payment for carriage made. The second clause provided that the carrier should fit up a notice in his receiving office, stating the increased rates of charge to be made on studies of certain value; and that all parties sending goods should be bound by such notice. This was doing away with the necessity of proving knowledge on the part of the configuor, and simply legalising the notices. The third clause provided that the carrier should give a receipt for goods, acknowledging the increased rate of payment of the configuor, and simply legalising the notice, that no notice was to ach as a public condition, but was only binding in a special contract. The fifth section provided that carriers should be liable for damage caused by gross negligence of bruild be liable for damage caused by gross negligence when the past of their servants. The bill was the for the major of the fifth of the past of t carriage of gold by secort; but he thought that that that to great a lability to impose upon the Government, considering the small amount charged for the carriage of gold. If the bill passed a second reading, he should be prepared to move the insertion of a clause exampling the Government from liability in this respect, and the prepared to move the head of the bill standard he Regildhorace between the principle of the bill said the Regildhorace between the principle of the bill said the Regildhorace with the second reading of the bill.

Mr. MARTIN said that this was a bill of very great importance. It related not only to carriage by land, but also to carriage by water, and thus it mined up two matters which were not altogether on the same footing. It proposed to give carriers power to limit their liability, and the clause referring to this matter was a very important one, which might materially affect not only individuals who sent goods by within the cative concurrence, he billeved, of the hin, and learned friend, he begged to move that the debate be adjourned until this day week.

The motion was put and agreed to.

WATRIVIEW PATENT SLIP BILL.

Mr. FARNELL, in the absence of the hom. member for Northumberland, moved the second reading of this bill. It proposed to close three streets in Balzain, which had practically no existence, as they were scarcely ever used, and to substitute for them a throughfare in every respect more convenient. There had been sentingly removed by the promoters of the bill.

The bill passed through committee without amondment, the House resumed, adopted the report of the committee, and the third reading of the bill was fixed an order of the day for Tuesday next.

HARTLEY VALE COLLIERY RAILWAY BILL.

Mr. BURNS moved the second reading of this bill. He said that this bill was before the House hast assent, when we have been reported to spece. Since then it had been antired so as to to obviate the objections which were made to it, and he believed that it would now be passed without any oppos

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY.

IN EQUITY.

Byfore his Honor the Primary Judge.

MACARTHER AND AND THER V. EMERY.

This was a motion for an interim injunction in a suit for specific performance. The object of the suit was to composite defendant to complete the purchase of 243 acres of land at Crookhaven, bought by him at auction in September. 1866, for £486, of which sum £162 had been paid on the execution of the agreement for such purchase. The defendant disputed the sufficiency of the title, and brought an action for the recovery of the deposit. It was to say this action that an injunction was now asked for. The principal question at issue was one of title. The property had been devised by will to the plaintiffs, and to sne "Robert Johnson, of Adelaide, farmer," as co-trustees. The plaintiff had sold in their own names, and their case was, that the use of the name Robert Johnson by the testator was a mistake. That there was no auch person, and that the only one who could have been meant was a person named William Johnson, who had declined to act. But there was no reference to this third trustee, or supposed trustee, in the conditions of sale and agreement thereon.

His Honon dismissed the application with costs. It would be necless, he held, to direct a reference to the Master to ascertain whether there was such a person as Robert Johnson at the time the will was made—in October, 1861—for the proof that no such person had been known at a subsequent date could not affect this question. The plaintiffs ought to have looked into the question of title before selling, and to have had the conditions of sale, and the agreement so drawn as to meet this difficulty.

Connet for the plaintiffs, Mr. Owen; for the defendant, Mr. Gordon.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.
Frinky, Oatley, Campbell, G. Hill, Cohon, Murphy, and Dangar.
Five prisoners were brought before the Court. Three were discharged; two were fined, one 10s., and the other 20s., for drunkenness.
Cornelius Hurley, 13, was yesterday apprehended on a warrant issued at the instance of his father, in which he was charged (under the industrial Schools Act) with wandering about in company with reputed thieves. John Hurley, of Dixon-street, dealer, deposed that the defendant is his son, and 13 years of age; he can get no good of him; he wanders about with other boys, and within the last month has been eleven nights from home; cannot say that the boys are thieves; he is unable to maintain the boy. Their Worships said that this is not a case within either the letter or the spirit of the Act; and it is the duty of the magistracy to prevent the perversion of a very good law to other than the purpose for which it was designed. They looked upon this case as an attempt to get rid of a burthen by shouldering upon the public the support and education of a boy who does not come within the category of those for whose benefit the Industrial Schools Act was passed, and they discharged the defendant, advising him to be a good boy and stop at home, which he promised he would do.

On the summons paper were fifteen cases, of which one was dismissed, seven were struck out, and in one a warrant was issued for the approhension of the defendant. Henry Redman was fined 10s., and Samuel Boneer was fined 6s., for allowing brises, their property, te stray in public places. James Manning was fined 5od, for allowing his horse and cart to stand in a public thoroughfare a longer time than was necessary for loading or unloading. The Rev. Mr. Purvis made a few observations on some remarks which had been incidentally made by some of the previous speakers.

The Rev. Mr. M'KENZIE thought, from an admission of Dr. Liddell, the Preobyterium of West Maitland had not any right to a beneficial interest in this valuable Church property. He was in favour of the motion moved by the Rev. Adam Thomson. He hoped that Dr. Liddell would give way to the judgment of that Assembly, and advise who acted with him to accept Mr. Purves sproposal.

The Select Committee of the Legislative Assembly, for whose consideration and report was referred, on the 17th July last, the "Bill to prohibit the dredging for or taking of overters during certain months in the year, with power to send for persons and papers," have brought up the following report:

That they have examined the witnesses named in the margin [E. S. Hill. Beag, Mr. R. Kmerson, Mr. George Clarke, jun., Mr. G. Frazer, Mr. J. Domavon, Mr. J. Knight] and the bill submitted to them; and, having made certain amendments in the bill and in the title, beg to lay before year honorable House the bill as so amended by them, with an amended title.

The evidence obtained during the inquiry into fisheries generally, incleases a necessity for an amendment of the Act 28 Vict. No. 10, so far as to allow the use of a net for prawn fishing not exceeding fitteen fathoms in length, and your committee recommend the same accordingly.

Your committee were desirous of inquiring into the subject of fisheries on our inland rivers, more particularly in connection with the Murray River cod, but the difficulty of obtaining information from so great a distance precluded the possibility of collecting evidence during the present season of Parliament; nevertheless, being of opinion that sany present requirements may be met by the passing of a short Act authorising the Governor, with the advise of the Executive Council, to make such rules and regulations as may be deemed expedient to protect the Murray River cod,—this your committee beg leave to recommend to your honorable House.

From Brisbane we have papers to the 30th ultimo.

With regard to the new gold-field, the Courser of the above date observer:—"Without any positive reason to warrant it, the excitement in Brisbane about the new gold-field, the courser of the above date observed;—"Without any positive reason to warrant it, the excitement in Brisbane about the new gold-field is increasing, and was mere manifest yesterday than we have yet observed it. Great numbers of persons have left, and are leaving, overland for Gympie Creek; and it is not an exaggeration to say that hundreds are now on the road. Plenty of provisions are being forwarded also, and there is no reason to suppose that the diggers will suffer much from scarcity of supplies. Various private telegrams were received yesterday, all indicating the faith of the persons sending them in the success of the gold-field. Our telegrams from Maryborough are not of a starting others, but they are decidedly encouraging, and will be read in inst light by all experienced miners. They go to show that the field is extensive and likely to be permanent, and they demonstrate that the people of Maryborough are wide awake to the advantages likely to be derived from the vast increase of a profitably employed population in that district, and are taking steps to secure them for their own town.

A very sad accident occurred on the 29th ultimo, at Grandchester, the same journal reports, which resulted in the death of a child belonging to August Ludke, a German resident of that place. TASMANIA.

We have news from Launceston to the 26th October:—
The Tesmenium Times understands "that the Lieunant-Colonel commanding the first battalion of the 14th ategiment at head quarters, Melbourne, is about to retire from the army. Brevet-Lieutenant-Colonel Dwyer, consmanding the second battalion in this garrison, will succeed to the regimental lieutenant-colonely thus weasted, and proceed to Melbourne to assume the command of the regiment."

A Launceston journal records the death of an old and respected colonist, Mr. Thomas Dryden, of Haggerston, near Ferth. "He was one of the early settlers in Port Phillip (Victeria), and exported hence both horses and sheep of the best breeds that could be obtained in this colony. Since then he accumulated considerable properties, both in Victoris and Tasmanis; and his character has at all times been marked by strict integrity."

A dreafful occurrence happened at Trafalgar, near Evandale, on the 15th Cotober, whereby an old lady named Ann Hayner was burnt to death in a but, where she lived alone.

By the Hesperus we have Mauritius papers to the 18th September. We extract the following from the Port Louis Vasatte —

A combination has been formed among the distillers in order to raise the price of colonial rum from 1s. to 5s. per gallon. The consequence will be that the Government (we may say the public) will be desprived of part of its revenue for the benefit of a few distillers. There will be less run consumed, but the difference of price is so great that the profit to distillers will be large enough to enacte many of them not to work, and receive a liberal allowance for their fraction. The extra price must be looked upon as an extra duty which goes into the pockets of some thirty of forty persons; if such extra duty can be levied, the Government should not remain indifferent and see part of its revenue openly taken away. To put the duty on spirits of all kinds at 10s. per gallon instead of 5s. 6s. would no doubt excite illicit distillation, fraudulent sale, and smuggling, for we ought to suppose that on such an article the Government has had a double object in view first, to check as far as possible the consumption; and, secondly, to tax as high as possible all that is consumed. This latter object would not be attained if spirits fraudulently distilled er amnggled came into consumption; and it is here the difficulty lies of deciding how far the cord can be stretched without breaking.

The Assizes were held on the 16th September, at which two cases were tried as follows:—Matadeon was charged with the rape of an Indian girl 12 years old. The case rested entirely on the evidence of the girl herealf, to which the jury gave full credence, notwithstanding a very good defence by Mr. Lapeyre, who had been appointed to defend when the said Indian. The facts of the case are simple, and may be told in a few words. One evening on returning home from work, prisoner found the deceased on his property where he had towken a few branches or rather leaves of a tree (Multiplient). He explained that being a close neighbour six months' imprisonment, but stated that the punishment chunds have new been one month had the prisoner, when can be ready had the prisoner, when the many had been a display valuable discoveries which have been drawn from the telegram received a fortnight ago from Captain Cadell do not appear to be supported by the full report which has now been laid before the House of Assembly. The very fact, indeed, that the explorers had determined to renew their examination of the coast, and to preced upon further voyages of discovery in regions so comparatively well known as Adam Bay and the Victoria, was of itself a proof that no very excellent site for a settlement had been found in the neighbourhood of the Liverpool; for if such a site had been found the object of the expedition would have been attained, and the explorers could have rested complacently on their laurels. But there is no evidence of such a site having been found, and Captain Cadell himself says not a word in confirmation of the rumours which have gone abroad relative to the alleged discovery of exceedingly valuable country. Those rumours, indeed, must have originated with some of his followers, who, according to the report, were "enjoying" themselves somewhat freely after their explorations at the Burke Tow public-housee. Writing from that place on the 26th of August last, Captain Cadell gives a record of his proceedings. He shows that he reached the Liverpool on the 5th of May; that he found a "splendid extuary" to that river; that the natives were overjoyed to see the white men; that the horse belonging to the expedition were landed; and that on the same alignt they were rushed by the famous alligator which had been mentioned in previous reports. Then the captain describes his visit to Mount Norris Bay, where he was disappointed in not meeting with Bob White, the native who centld speak English, and where the explorers were anable to capture the buffaloes which they wanted, though they succeeded in wounding two. Then the report describes how the party at all is the report to show that the new river is more important than many others which are known to exist on the essue coast.

The next portion of the report relates to the examination of a part of the country near Blue Mud Bay in East Arnbeim's Land. This is the country which Captain Cadell in his telegram poles of an a "perfect Polynesia," and much credit has been claimed for his discovery of its true character. From such credit no one would think of detracting, but after all it does not appear that the exumination of this I olynesis has done anything towards discovering suitable land for a new settlement in North Australia. Captain Cadell's report is certainly not at all complimentary to the character of the said Polynesis, for he reports, under date July 20:—" We had been passing through a wretheds conderbund, or sollection of islands, tenanted apparently by alligators. They (the islands) were fringed with narrow but laxuriant belts of mangroves, whilst their interiors—dead flats—were occupied by claypans, or supported scanty salesloaceous plants.

After this excursion amongst the Islands, the explorers in August examined the Roper for about forty miles, when they were stopped by a sandbank stratching right across the river—a bar, on the inner side of which was a flae fresh water river, with the uniform depth of two fathoms. The banks were much bolder than usual, without the everlesting mangroves, whilst the adjacent country partook of the nature of open plains." Grantle and quartz were found in the course of the exploration, and it was up the river that "the bearded white man was heard of." The report says—"A native made signs from the opposite bank, and finally waded across to the boat. Before resching it, however, he began telling the men, in his own pantonimite way, about a man—"one man"—with a beard down to his waist, who was or had been in the negation them, and finally sold across to the boat. Before resching it, however, he began telling the men'th a superior that the man is silly, as the natives from attaching too much importance to the results of his explorations, and, in conclusion, he says.—"I must crave that you will extend to me your extreme indugance for this hastily-written marrative, thrown off in the public room of a bush inn on the very ultims thuis of civilization, with rather more than its full share of all the interruptions and desagriemens incidental thereto, intensibled. I regret to say, by my own 'likerty men,' who, true to their country and their colony, are enjoying (?) themselves after a few months of my toierable discipline."

Taking the report altogether, its most valuable contents are apparently those which relate to the new river, the examination of the mouth of the Roper, and the exploration of the Polynesis in Kast Arnheim's Land. On these points there are unquestionably facts of interest and importance, though they may have but very little bearing on the question of founding a settlement in North Australia. As regards the rivers mentioned by Captain Cadel, the mouth of the Roper has not hitherto been well known, though Leichhard desamined the stream further up. He came upon this river in the month of October, about twenty miles from the sea, and found the country along its left bank well grassed and openly timbered, chiefly with "the Australian box." Waterfowl, especially ducks and goese, were exceedingly numerous, and the river abounded with fish, which the natives, who possessed from cutting implements, caught in traps made of the wild rattan. Mussels were also abundant, and formed an important article of consumption among the natives. Leichhardt followed the river up in a westerly direction for several days, the country rather improving as he ascended. A strong sea-breeze blew up the valley of the river every afternoon, and proved very refrence to the new river—the Blyth—it appears that it is only three or four miles to the castward of the Liverpool, which has long been supposed to be the most important watercourse in the neighbourhood. This latter river, in fact, has been

Sin,—I regret that the report of a meeting which took place at Waterloo a few nights since, to forward the separation of the Western Ward, has compelled me to address you publicly,—my reason for doing so being that the report alluded to makes a statement upon the authority of one of the promoters of, and a speaker at, the said meeting; and it is, therefore, only fair that I should deny its correctness in as public a manner as I can. It was stated that there were sieven hundred pounds (£1100) to the credit of the Western Ward. How the imaginative mind of any person could find such a credit I am at a loss to know; but a false assertien made at this time, when a petition for and a petition against separation are before you, and when a deputation is about to wait upon you to forward the prayer of the first petition, being unfair, I beg to take the liberty of laying before you the correct state of the Ward in quantitien being verified by the signature of the council clerk and treasurer.

"MENO.—The Western Ward had on the 30th June, 1867, a Dr. balance of £8 11s. 3d., and on the 30th September, 1867, there were to its credit £177 12s. 45d. Of this amount the sum of £160 has been given by the trustees of the Waterloo Estate as a donarion towards the formation of Mitchell Road, consequently the credit of the Ward you represent was at the end of last querter, £77 12s. 6d.

Sik,—In your summary of this day I notice a paragraph, which is not entirely correct, as to the nugget found at the Clyde. The nugget, which is a very beautiful specimen "and now on view in Brush and Mac Donnell's window, George-street," was turned up (in a discarded claim) by Mr. Sowerby Thistleton (my sephew), in the bed of Solder's Creek, which runs into the Clyde. The gross weight of quartz and geld is 26 os. 4 dwis, and the estimated wright of gold is about 18 os. It will go through the necessary operations at the Mint, "and be turned into colu" during the next week.

GOODS ON THE CAUSEWAY.

To the Editor of the Heraid.

Six.—A short time since I observed in one of your Police reports that several shopkeepers had been fined the sum of the cause of the causeway, and also cautioned that if again summoned on that charge, a fine of 40s, each for exposing goods for sale on the causeway, and also cautioned that if again summoned on that charge, a fine of 40s, would be inflicted. Still this does not appear to have been a caution to others. On traversing one of our cross stricts a few days since I had the misfortune to tread on a piece of orange peel which caused me to alip and fall, and in my secramble, and placing my hand to save a more tender part, it came in contact with an earthenware jar, which, with numerous other articles, were exposed for sale on the pavement before a marine store, and caused it to overturn and where \(\) into several pleces. Before I could well regain my feet the shopkeeper was out alusing me for my clumsiness, and demanding payment of me for destroying his goods, and which, to prevent a scene, I was obliged to comply with, otherwise I should have allowed the law to decide who was to be at the lose for the damage done.

I do not know whether the police are the ones supposed to see that the causeways are kept clear of obstructions, but I think not, for they cannot help seeing the large amount of pavement which is taken up by the goods of many shopkeepers in our cross and other streets. Perhaps it is only the most fashionable parts of George and Plut streets where it is necessary that there should be no obstructions to foot passengers. But if such is not the case, I trust the proper authorities will look to other streets in the city, and

"NON-ALCOHOL" ON THE MAINE LAW IN

"NON-ALCOHOL" ON THE MAINE LAW IN THE UNITED STATES.

To the Editor of the Herald

Sin,—My attention has been called to a letter inserted in your issue of the 23rd instant, containing some very encouraging statements respecting the operation of the Maine Liquor Law in several States of the American Union. The friends of prohibition are under obligation to "Non-Alcohol" for his letter, and I hope he will write again upon the subject.

The spread of the Maine Liquor Law, however, in the United States is of very much wider range than the terms of "Non-Alcohols" letter appears to indicate, encouraging as those terms were. The Maine Liquor Law was passed in the State of Maine in May, 1851. In the Senate of Maine the votes were 18 for, 10 against; and in the House of Representatives 85 for, and 40 against; the law received the sanction of the Governor on the 2nd June, 1831.

At present the Maine Liquor Law is the law of theirteen States of the American Union. Missouri (population, 1,173,3317). Kansas (population, 107,110) are the latest adhesions. In Illinois (population, 1,711,753) it has for the present been lost by a single vote.

So complete has been the success of the Maine Liquor Law that it seems only proper to add that any one attempting to treat this law as an obsolete or explicate of impracticable Legislative measure, inevitably exposes himself to the charge of either ignorance of the whole matter, or of wilful and corrupt misrepresentation.

SINGULAR FATAL ACCIDENT.—An inquest was held at Bolton on the body of a little boy, named Tong. It appears that on the previous day he was playing in the street, and his mother went to fetch him in. Whilst out she stopped to speak with a neighbour, the child in the meantime going into the house. On the mother following him a few minutes later, she found the little fellow with his head in a mug of dough standing upon the floor. She instantly extricated him, but unfortunately he had been suffocated, his mouth being filled with dough. The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.—Manchester Guerdian.

FINLAY and CO. have received instructions from Hubert de Castella, Esq., to sell by suction, at their Rooms, Market-square, Goulburn, on WEDNESDAY, 20th November, at 12 o'clock.

That truly spleadid estate, formed by the connecting of the two properties so well known by the names of BOMBALLA and BOSWORTH, the property of the late Robert Pitt Jenkina, Esq.

This magnificent property, which is abundantly watered, contains 650e acres 3 roods 25 perches of the best description of grazing and srable land, and Is, without exception, one of the most attractive properties in the colony.

The residence known as Bomballa is situated on a lofty piece of table-land, and commands an enchanting and most picture que view; the stately English trees in the park, and walks around, lead to it a beauty and pleasantness rarely met with in colonial properties.

Attacked to the house is a large orchard stocked with the choicest fruit trees, apples, cherries, gooseberries, currants, and the other small but luscious fruits in abundance, including camelias, which grow in the greatest profusion.

There are numerous out-buildings attached to the residence, which itself is considerable, and the whole might with a very little expense be made one of the most comfortable estabilishments in the colony.

The paddocks are large, and subdivided into cultivation and fattening, and as regards the soil, it is of the richest chocola's loam.

The fattening properties of this truly splandid estate might by some be thought incredible; but the auctioneers, as stock agersia, can speak from their experience that Bomballs, with very few exceptions, can and is capable of turning out on the cleared portion and from the PATTENING PADDOCKS, riper and more rapidly fattened estite than any in the now well-known

The various parcels comprising the property have each their improvements. On the principal one is the HOME-STEAD, which is nicely situated and comprises A SUBSTANTIALLY-BUILT STONE COTTAGE, with detached kitchen, servants' room, stable, bara, yarda, fowl-bouse, and fifty sores cleared for cultivation; the whole Estate, which has an UNLIMITED SUPPLY OF WATER, being entirely fenced in with a first-class fence, and subdivided into the JISTRICT.

It is almost unnecessary to point out the extraordinary attractions this choice little property has over many others in this district; but the incontrovertible fact that the LUXURIANCE AND RICHNESS OF THE GRASSES on the property are so great that with the pre-empityed and, which is fenced in 300 HKAD OF CATTLE can and have been annually fattened, and 1000 SHEEP can easily be depastured on the leased lands adjoining. Whether as an agricultural, fattening, or dairy farm, it stands unrivalled for its size.
